TERSELY TOLD.

B. Gerson left at noon yesterday to join his wife and child.

J. Clarke Porter left yesterday noon for Louisville, Ky., where he will remain some weeks or pleasure.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Robson, of the Robson Theatre Co., are the parents of a little daughter born Oct. 2.

Judge John C. Avery left yesterday for Chicago, where he will remain for several days on a business visit.

The many friends of Mrs. John Hall, who has been quite ill for several days, will be pleased to learn that she is fast recovering.

There are a few people who "boast" that they "do not need aids." A few years ago these same people probably boasted that they "did not read newspapers." So you see, they are improving—even if a little slowly.

Hon. Jas. M. Muldon left on the noon train yesterday for Louisville, where he will meet Wm. S. Keyser, who has been absent from the city for some time. Mr. Muldon will be absent from the city for about ten days.

P. E. Brawner received a letter yesterday from J. C. Pebley, who is in Nashville containing $10.00 for the fever relief fund. Mr. Pebley expressed regret at the spread of the fever here and the hope that it might soon be conquered.

P. K. Yonge returned to Pensacola Monday night, coming from Jacksonville where he attended a meeting of the board of control of state educational institutions. Mr. Yonge had previously been in New York going from there to Jacksonville.

The many friends of L. L. Hughey, the popular agent of the Crescent News Co., whose newstand is at the union depot, will be glad to know that he is recovering in good shape from the attack of yellow fever which he recently suffered.

The steamer Simbria, with a part cargo of lumber, arrived in port late yesterday afternoon, and went to a point off the quarantine station. A mark, the name of which could not be learned, was also being towed up to quarantine in the afternoon.

Seventeen defendants were before Recorder Laney in the municipal court yesterday morning for trial. Of this number two defendants were discharged, one case continued, one given a sentence of ten days, and fines imposed amounting to $58.

The remains of Basil E. Bogart, the young man who died Sunday night of yellow fever, were placed at rest in St. John's cemetery yesterday morning, the services being conducted at the home by Rev. J. S. Sibley, of the First Presbyterian church. A large concourse of sorrowing friends and relatives were present to pay their last respects to the deceased. The shock to his large number of relatives and acquaintances. He was a large and fleshy man, and although not taken ill until a few days ago, his condition during all of yesterday was considered extremely critical. The end came last night about 8 o'clock, when he was surrounded by friends and relatives. The deceased had been deputy harbor master for the past eight or ten years, and was considered one of the most competent harbor pilots in the service.

The deceased lost his wife by death only a few months since, and he leaves to mourn his loss three small children. He has a number of relatives, however, being a brother-in-law of Messrs. Thos. Arthur and Jos. I. Johnson. He had many friends in the city, where he has resided for a long period of years. He was a member of a number of organizations and societies. The funeral services will be conducted this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Dr. Porter on Situation.
State Health Officer Porter, last night, in speaking of the large number of new cases, said:

"I am not disappointed as I forecasted eight or ten days ago that we would have such an increase, so it did not come unexpected. Now the situation is such that the citizens must assist in getting rid of the mosquito, especially in houses where sickness has occurred. The very first sign of sickness should be reported immediately to the health authorities in order that they may take the proper steps. The bed chamber of the patient must be first fumigated, and then the remainder of the house. This must be done within the first three days of the infection.

"Now, this must be done, and the health officials are going to insist upon it, even though it be necessary to carry a patient from a sick room in the arms and place him in another room. If we want to get rid of this fever in less than two months the citizens must assist the officials. There must be no impediments placed in the way of fumigation and screening, but on the other hand all should cheerfully assist in the eradication of the mosquito and stamping out of the disease."

The physicians are doing everything possible, as well as the state health authorities to stamp out the disease, but they are not meeting with that co-operation that should be extended them. Instead of throwing obstacles in their way the residents should be glad to assist in the work of eradicating the mosquito, and unless this is done there is no possible chance of stopping the spread of the disease. It has now reached such a stage that this must be done, and the authorities insist that no more obstacles be thrown in the way of those who are endeavoring to rid the city of fever.

Call bearers were Clyde Arnette, John McGavin, Bruce Daniels, C. C. Goodman, Charles Licata and Perry Dickman.

Quite a large number of warrants were issued at the police station for persons who had been reported by the sanitary inspectors for allowing stagnant water to remain on their premises. The inspectors are now paying close attention to the stagnant water which is found in yards, and which breeds mosquitoes.

Sam Rosenau leaves today for Nashville. Sam says his feet are not cold but that he thinks the Tennessee ozone would feel better in his lungs just at present, and as his lungs constitute a large part of his store, in trade he wants to save them if possible.

J. W. Church, a young white man, who was arrested some time ago on a charge of having broken into Mrs. Condon's store, but who was not convicted on that charge, yesterday finished serving a sentence in the city jail for vagrancy. The newspaper reports at the time of Church's arrest spoke of him as a negro, and as he is white he says he wants the public to know it.

THE CHAMPIONSHIP SERIES IN NEW YORK

series, while the whirlwind pitching of Ed Crane was too much for the Brooklyn boys.

In 1890 the Players' league pennant went to Boston, Brooklyn won the National league prize and Louisville won the association honors.

Brooklyn and Louisville played a few games, and after a tie decided to finish the series the next season, but the games were never played.

In 1891 Boston captured two championships, the National League and American Association. The league refused to play the association for the championship, and after the amalgamation, in 1892 there was no chance for genuine contests until four years ago, when the American League expanded and rivaled the National League in popularity as well as in strength.

WILLIAM HOWE DEPUTIZED AS BRITISH VICE-CONSUL

William Howe yesterday afternoon received a telegram deputizing him to act in the position of British vice-consul until such time as a successor to Vice-Consul Bonar, who expired yesterday, be appointed.

The British authorities were notified at once of the death of Mr. Bonar, and in order that there might be no delay in the entrance or clearance of British vessels Mr. Howe was appointed to act in the capacity of vice-consul.

An Advertising Trick.

One of the most amusing incidents relative to sleek advertising was a trick on the Chicago newspapers several years ago. One of the partners of a firm went into court and filed a bill for injunction to restrain the other partner from sacrificing the goods in their store at figures far below first cost.

The plaintiff set forth in detail that his partner had with some insane desire marked all the goods in the store down below cost. Then he went into details and showed how different articles were being sacrificed, notwithstanding his protest, and asked the court to issue an injunction and restrain the fractions partner. It was a strange fight, and the newspapers took it up and devoted columns to the novel case.

The result was that people on the lookout for bargains flocked to the store and purchased goods. Day after day the hearing for an injunction was delayed, and finally, when the free ad. had been worked to its end, the suit was dismissed without prosecution, the whole cost to the firm for thousands of dollars' worth of advertising being about $25.

When France Had No Sabbath.

It was during the French revolution of 1789 that a weekly Sabbath was totally abolished. The national convention which declared France a republic determined at the instance of Gebet, archbishop of Paris, to abandon Christianity and to substitute instead the worship of liberty, equality and reason. Churches were quickly despoiled and civic feasts substituted for religious festivals. The convention also enacted that time instead of being reckoned from the birth of Christ should thereafter count from the birthday of the French revolution, the year to begin anew from that date, Sept. 22, 1792. That the Christian Sabbath might not be observed the months were to consist of thirty days each, a day of rest being granted only at the close of each decade (every ten days). Under the directory established by a new constitution in 1795 the laws of Robespierre were repealed, the churches were reopened, and Sunday took its rightful place in the calendar.—Pearson's Weekly.

DR. J. S. HERRON FINED $25 AND COSTS

By Recorder Laney Yesterday For Refusing Admittance to Sanitary Inspectors

Dr. J. S. Herron, one of the oldest physicians in the city, was yesterday found guilty in the municipal court presided over by Judge Laney, on the charge of refusing to allow sanitary inspectors in the employ of the city, to enter his residence and make an inspection of the premises and house. Judge Laney after finding the defendant guilty, assessed a fine of $25 and costs.

Dr. Herron was arrested last week, but each day there was a postponement of the case, some excuse being offered by the defendant for not being ready for trial. Saturday the court announced that the case would be tried Tuesday, and yesterday morning the case was called, and the testimony of the sanitary inspector who was refused admittance and that of the city physician, were heard.

The defendant was represented by E. T. Davis, while the city's interests were looked after by City Attorney Jones.

The arguments were postponed in the case until yesterday afternoon, when court again convened and heard the attorneys. Afterwards the finding was announced and sentence passed.

Attorneys for Dr. Herron gave notice of an appeal, and the proper bond was given pending a decision from a higher court.

WHIMSICAL CHARITIES.

Some of Them Work Out Very Well in the Long Run.

Many people who wish to bestow charity have strange ways of carrying out their ideas. Some years ago an Englishman named James Moss left $500 to be invested in land, the rent of which was to provide five gowns, according to the will, "of a sad blue color" for as many aged and poor men living in the town.

Some years ago a Frenchman named Bourne died and left to the poor of his town a few acres of no great value. For more than two centuries the lands yielded only a few dollars a year. The nearest large town began to spread and soon took in these lands. The value increased amazingly, so that today the revenue from them amounts to over $10,000 a year. From this sum sixty-eight poor people draw pensions of $50 a year and twenty-four old men and women live rent free and enjoy an annual present of $20 besides.

A similar charity, which has benefited many people, is that founded by William France. At his death he left lands valued at a few thousand dollars for Christmas gifts to his needy fellow townsmen. The revenue has now passed into hundreds and the sum of $22,500 is now distributed annually in the town. Of this sum $15,000 has been contributed to a local technical school and an infirmary. One of the strangest of these charities provided a sum of money with the direction that "on Sunday after divine service was performed there should be an annual ceremony of throwing bread and cheese out of the church steeple among the spectators and giving them ale." The custom was established by two women. Another beneficent act was by a man named Henry Greene of London. He was an odd character, who lived in the eighteenth century and had considerable money. He left a sum of money, the interest of which was to be spent annually in providing "four old women with green waistcoats to be laced with green galleon lace and to be delivered to the women on or before

Dec. 20, so that they may be worn on Christmas day."

William Robinson, one time sheriff of the town in which he lived, contrived to have his memory kept green at a much smaller cost than many men would pay for even a limited mortality. By his will he directed that every Christmas day twelve loaves of bread should be given to as many poor widows. But in order to qualify for the loaves the widows must present themselves at the testator's grave and receive their Christmas gifts over the bones of their benefactor.—New York Herald.

One Plant Family.

Three American food plants—the Indian corn, the potato and tomato—have revolutionized the food problem of the civilized world. Yet another American plant, though not a food producer, might be added to this list of new world conquerors, for it has had a history even more remarkable than that of the others. The "Virginia weed" has penetrated far beyond the bounds of civilization and made conquests where the names of the other three plants have scarcely been heard.

The tomato comes of a family which is largely in the service of mankind. It gave us first of all the potato. The eggplant and the cayenne or red pepper plant, two other food producers, belong to it, the pretty race of petunias also and the Jerusalem cherry, the climbing bittersweet and that inhabitant of old fashioned gardens, the matrimony bush; the famous tobacco plant and the herb belladonna, of great medicinal importance. Our wayside weed, the common nightshade, whose bright berries we like to see in autumn, is also a humble member of this family.

He learns the history and traditions of the tribe as they are related about the hearthstone of the tepee in the evening. There, too, he hears stories of the chase, of war, of prowess, and he is quick to catch the subtle points of the tale and to learn the secrets of stalking the game or ambushing the enemy. The daughter learns her mother's arts, as does the white girl, by practical attempts under the mother's supervision. The arts and occupations of both sexes are few, and the process of acquiring an education is not a long or difficult one.
